The 2007 Henna Page Calendar

FOREWORD

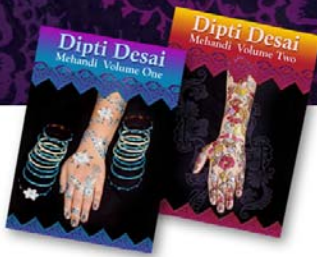

by Roy Jones

Henna body art has gone through a remarkable evolution as people from the cultures where henna use is traditional have migrated to the West, bringing their customs with them and continuing to practice those customs in their new homes. Their neighbours in the West have adopted henna and brought their own vision to the craft, incorporating patterns from other traditions as well as non-traditional uses and applications.

The 2007 Henna Page Calendar contains examples of this new vision, realized in henna, indigo and other body art media, based on patterns from selected TapDancing Lizard Publications body art pattern books, along with listings of holidays and celebration days when marking oneself with henna or indigo would be in keeping with old or newly emerging traditions.
